Name of Creator: Margaret M. Martin

Biographical History:

Margaret M. Martin was born on August 15, 1940 in Buffalo, New York to artistically-minded parents—her father worked as an architect and her mother was interested in the fine arts. Before graduating from Boston University and receiving a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Advertising Design, she attended Buffalo Seminary. After completing her years at university, Martin worked both as an art director and in the graphic design field.

Martin eventually became fascinated with working in watercolor and took lessons from other artists, improving her skills and deepening her interest. In time, she shifted to becoming a watercolorist, art instructor, and exhibition judge. In addition, Martin participated in and became a valued member of clubs such as the Women's Group, the Buffalo Society of Artists, and the Niagara Frontier Water Color Society. Her work has won several honors and been featured in numerous publications, as well as in the 2003 Universal Studios film Bruce Almighty. Her book, No More Wisby-Washy Watercolor, was published in 1999 as an aid to those wishing to improve their watercolor skills.

Floral, nautical, and architectural themes are most commonly found in Martin's art. When speaking of her work, Martin often noted that she was stirred by seemingly common and ordinary subjects. Exaggerating aspects of subjects in her work allowed for a more profound and vibrant connection to them. Understandably, her studio on Elmwood Avenue in Buffalo was often recognized by bright floral décor.

On November 29, 2012, Margaret M. Martin passed away in Kenmore, New York.
