

Alan Bigelow writes digital stories and poems for the web using images, text, audio, video, and other components. These non-traditional narratives employ poetic and occasionally humorous/ironic metaphors. Often they make statements about contemporary life, culture, and politics.. These stories are created for viewing on the web, although they also appear in museums, festivals, and galleries as media installations.